Nation to Rise Roosevelt Day To Honor Navy

Late President's Birthday, Oct. 27, Occasion of Notable Festivities at Capital and Throughout Nation

Fleet To Be Centered Here

Denby Will Lay Wreath to Unknown Dead; Colleges to Help Honor Service

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Plans are practically completed for one of the greatest naval celebrations in the history of the country. Next Friday, October 27, the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, will be Navy Day and elaborate preparations have been made for its observance.

The purpose of setting aside this special day, according to its sponsors, was to make the American people better acquainted with the navy, and to get the people to think of the navy as it has done, not so much in war, but in its peace mission.

While not a legal holiday, Navy Day, which is to be an annual event, has the sanction of the President and of the Secretary of the Navy, and will be nationally celebrated. Designation of this day for the purpose was suggested by the Navy League of the United States, and the idea received the hearty approval of the Navy Department.

Some of the twenty-one states have sponsored the day, and have pledged their help to make the day a national day. Some of them have issued proclamations calling attention to the day and others have had their governors acting in its behalf. There will be seventy odd colleges and universities have written endorsing the idea and telling of plans for local observance of the day, by having speakers address the student body or other observance.

Ships to All Coast Cities

Plans for the day's celebration cover a wide range. Warships from the fleet have been ordered to all coast cities and on Friday will hold open house for the public, and will be warmly welcomed. The same will apply to all navy yards and shore stations.

Much of the fleet will be in the North River, New York, and day and night will make a grand display, say with bunting during the day and ablaze with electricity at night. Civic observance is in the hands of a local committee, but it will be extensive.

In Washington there will be three outstanding features. In the morning Secretary Denby, accompanied by representatives of the Navy League and high navy officials, will lay a wreath on the tomb of the unknown dead at Arlington. Simultaneously naval attaches at London, Paris and Rome will lay wreaths on the tombs of their unknown dead, the ribbons of which wreaths having been sent to them from here.

In the afternoon Secretary Denby and all of the navy staff are on duty in the department will march to the statue of John Paul Jones in Potomac Park, where a commemorative ceremony will be held. The march will be in the company of the Navy League and the guests will include President Harding, Secretary Denby, officials of the league and many other national figures. An interesting incident of the day will be the laying of a wreath on the tomb of Roosevelt at Oyster Bay by Admiral Hilary P. Jones, commander in chief of the fleet.

Radio and Films to Help

One means of carrying the message of the day into the homes has been the acceptance of the offer of more than a score of broadcasting stations. Speakers of the radio will carry their eulogies of the navy to the farmers of the great central sections, as well as to those along the coast more familiar with the subject possibly.

Still another way of approach to the public by which millions will "know their navy better" has been the enlistment of the co-operation of the news weeklies, the newspapers of flimdom. All five of these news reels will carry this week a pictorial story of the activities of the navy, the navy's saving of hundreds of thousands of movie fans throughout the country what the navy is actually doing.

In the second section of the country also local civic and other organizations are planning their special celebrations. In most cases the speakers of the day are men of national prominence.

Girl Scouts Name 4 More to Direct Training of Leaders

The increase in the number of colleges offering training courses for girl scout leaders has led to the addition of four members to the educational staff of the National Council of Girl Scouts, it was announced yesterday.

The four additional members who will work under the general direction of Dr. Elizabeth Kemper Adams are Miss Eliza Becker, of Maryland, Miss Elizabeth M. Haney, of Northwestern University, Miss Pauline Wherry, of the University of Texas, and Miss Marion E. Trot, of Tufts College.

The National Council now has six women directing the work of training leaders for girl scout troops.

J. L. Cowles, "Father Of Parcel Post," Dies

Writer on Civic Problems Who Campaigned for Measure Succumbs in South

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 22.—Word was received here to-day of the death of James Lewis Cowles, formerly of this city, well known writer on postal and railroad problems, at Richmond, Va., this morning. Mr. Cowles was known as the "father of the parcel post" because of his untiring work in advocating its adoption.

Mr. Cowles for years was recognized as one of the leading authorities on postal problems in the country. Although he never held any official position, his influence through his writings in various periodicals was so great that the passage of the parcel post legislation was in large measure ascribed to his observations.

Mr. Cowles was born in Farmington, Conn., in 1843 and was graduated from Yale in 1866. He was admitted to the Connecticut bar two years later, but never practiced law. He became interested in various civic problems and devoted his life to writing on them, contributing to many periodicals. He wrote on railroad problems, the post-office, his adoption of public ownership and other allied topics.

Seabury Lawrence, Veteran Journalist, Is Dead Here at 63

Was Noted Writer on Financial Topics and for 25 Years N.Y. Correspondent of Boston News Bureau

Seabury Lawrence Jr., sixty-three years old, died yesterday at the Montefiore Hospital after a protracted illness. The immediate cause of death was heart failure superinduced by acute arthritis. Mr. Lawrence was the son of the late Seabury and Emily Sanford Lawrence and was born in 1859 at 7 West Thirty-seventh Street.

For many years Mr. Lawrence was well-known as a writer on financial topics in Wall Street and at one time was editor and publisher of a financial paper called "The Daily Stockholder." He was a personal friend and had a long association with the figures of the Wall Street and the Boston News Bureau. Mr. Lawrence for twenty-five years was the New York correspondent of the Boston News Bureau and the last five years had been practically bedridden.

Mr. Lawrence was a member of an old New York family. His grandfather, Henry Lawrence, who was born in 1794, was a pioneer in the cordage business here and built a rope walk near his home early in the last century.

Mr. Lawrence is survived by his wife, the widow of the late William Wheeler, once noted here as a dramatic critic, writing under the name of "York Crinkle"; two sons, Seabury Lawrence Jr. and William Lawrence, and two daughters, Mrs. Francis William Sullivan of Silvermine, Conn., and Miss Katherine Lawrence, who is on the staff of The Tribune, and two granddaughters, Mrs. William Sullivan of Silvermine, Conn., and Miss Katherine Lawrence, who is on the staff of The Tribune, and two granddaughters, Mrs. William Sullivan of Silvermine, Conn., and Miss Katherine Lawrence, who is on the staff of The Tribune.

For years Mr. Lawrence was a member of the Westchester Racing Association and was a member of the New York Athletic Club at the time of his death.

U. S. and Canada Asked to House Near East Orphans

Asylum in Ravaged Regions Crowded, Little Ones Face Grim Fate Unless Protected

Appeal has been made to both the Canadian and American governments to provide a refuge for 5,000 children of nations on the verge of ruin because of the military situation in the Near East. The request has been made by Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, who announced yesterday that orphans on the European side of the Bosphorus were dangerously overcrowded and could not continue giving temporary shelter to the children withdrawn from the danger zone.

"Some of the children are from the Smyrna region," said Mr. Vickrey. "About a thousand are from among those recently removed from Harpoot, in the interior. We can't send them to the Bosphorus side of the Bosphorus. We can't move them back, because that would probably mean death, and in other regions the orphanage problems are already too great."

The Near East Relief also announced that the steamship Relief, with 2,600 tons of flour for American relief distribution in Russia, has been purchased and diverted to Piræus to feed refugees from the Smyrna district.

Alfonso at Mass in Hospital

BORDEAUX, Oct. 22.—King Alfonso attended mass this morning in the chapel attached to the hospital where he has been undergoing treatment for an old ailment. Later he had luncheon at a restaurant in the city and afterward went to the races. He expects to depart to-morrow for Madrid.

Lyman Abbott, Preacher and Editor, Dead

"Whetstone" and signed "Laicus" became a conspicuous feature of that paper; presently he became managing editor; and upon Beecher's retirement in 1881; he succeeded him as editor in chief, with Hamilton W. Mabie as his second. This journal was transformed and made a magazine, and in 1888, Dr. Abbott remaining at its head and contributing much to its contents. Henry Ward Beecher died in March, 1887, and on the Sunday after his death Dr. Abbott preached a memorial sermon on his career from the pulpit of Plymouth Church. In October following he was called by that church to be its temporary pastor until a permanent successor to Beecher could be found. He thus served until May, 1888, when he was chosen permanent pastor, and on January 16, 1890, he was regularly installed.

Successful as Beecher's Successor

Despite the striking contrast in many respects between him and Beecher, his pastorate was highly successful. He lacked Beecher's marvelous power of magnetism, his humor and thrilling eloquence, but his sermons were among the most scholarly and logical that any American pastor has at that time privileged to hear. He was a man of the highest intellectual attainments, and his results of theological and scientific research, and the doctrines which he preached were much more liberal and "advanced" than those of Beecher, which had been by no means conservative. He was also efficient in the social and other activities of the church.

He resigned the pastorate, to the great regret of the church, in order to devote more attention to literary and civic work.

During his pastorate of Plymouth Church he retained the editorship of the "Outlook," and was actively engaged in writing of books. He was actively interested in many enterprises and organizations for the welfare of society and exemplified in his life the principle which he so often expressed: "He who denies the Brotherhood of Man is as much an infidel as he who denies the Fatherhood of God."

Wrote Much on the Bible

His bibliography during his life was voluminous. It comprised "The Bible," "The Old Testament," "The New Testament," "The Bible as a Layman's Story," "How to Study the Bible," "Illustrated Commentary on the New Testament," 1875; "Dictionary of Religious Knowledge," (with T. J. Conant), 1876; "A Study of the Bible," 1885; "In Aid of Faith," 1891; "Life of Christ," 1894; "Evolution of Christianity," 1896; "The Theology of the Bible," 1897; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1898; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1899; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1900; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1901; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1902; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1903; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1904; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1905; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1906; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1907; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1908; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1909; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1910; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1911; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1912; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1913; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1914; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1915; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1916; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1917; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1918; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1919; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1920; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1921; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1922; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1923; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1924; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1925; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1926; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1927; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1928; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1929; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1930; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1931; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1932; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1933; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1934; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1935; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1936; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1937; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1938; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1939; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1940; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1941; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1942; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1943; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1944; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1945; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1946; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1947; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1948; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1949; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1950; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1951; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1952; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1953; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1954; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1955; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1956; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1957; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1958; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1959; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1960; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1961; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1962; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1963; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1964; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1965; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1966; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1967; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1968; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1969; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1970; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1971; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1972; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1973; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1974; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1975; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1976; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1977; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1978; "The Bible as a Layman's Story," 1979; "The
